INVESTING RIGHT

In today's ever-evolving investment landscape, it has become increasingly clear that traditional avenues may not always deliver the desired results. Standard portfolios heavily concentrated in stocks, bonds and even real estate are not always yielding the desired results, according to a Global Wealth Report by Credit Suisse. PwC research also concluded that hedge funds outperformed traditional mutual funds by an average of 4.4% annually over a 10-year period ending in 2020. As a result, a significant portion of the wealth of the super-rich is now being allocated to alternative investments such as private equity, derivative trading, and hedge funds.

Even among average investors, a study by Dalbar shed light on the diminishing returns of some investments, revealing that mutual fund investors earned a meager annual return of just 4.67% over a 20-year period ending in 2016. Similarly, the average equity fund investor fared only slightly better, with an annual return of 5.96%, while the S&P 500 surged ahead with a return of 8.19% during the same timeframe. This significant performance gap has the potential to jeopardize the financial future of investors.

PLATFORM OF THE FUTURE

In the aftermath of the 2008 financial crisis, the Bank for International Settlements revealed that recessions did not affect the growth of financial assets trading as they do to so many forms of investments. An economic crisis can often present the ideal time for currency, CFDs and derivative trading, making them a lucrative option for investors seeking refuge from economic volatility and high inflation. The demand for genuine trading services has reached unprecedented levels in recent years as investors increasingly turn to these alternative investment vehicles in pursuit of stable risk-adjusted returns

Our investment vehicles, labelled "Dux Portfolio" serve as timely avenues to the realm of hedge fund earnings, catering to the average discerning investor. Since their inception, the funds have reliably delivered positive returns on investment each quarter, boasting a flawless track record free from any instances of negative annual turnover to date. The track record showcases the steadfastness and consistency of our trading systems and models.

We prioritize transparency and accountability, thus openly showcasing our performance results on our website for scrutiny. These results are verified by third parties and stand as a testament to the genuine services we render. We exhibit tangible evidence that trading financial instruments can be conducted professionally to yield real consistent long-term income.

Some major banks are known to allocate as much as 20-30% of their funds into the currency market and generate between 40-60% of their total profits through trading currencies. This is by far their most lucrative endeavour.

FLEXIBILITY WITH SECURITY

The financial markets have so many favorable advantages which attracts the world's biggest banks and hedge funds daily. The currency market alone has more than $7.3 trillion exchanging hands every day. However, they also attract many inexperienced individuals who lack proper training and knowledge, and they usually lose all their money! This is why a lot of people believe the financial markets to be risky and unsafe.

Indeed, trading leveraged products such as indices, currencies, gold, and commodity CFDs carries inherent risks, particularly for inexperienced individuals. However, it is crucial to recognize that these markets also offer substantial opportunities for skilled and knowledgeable experts to generate significant and consistent streams of income.

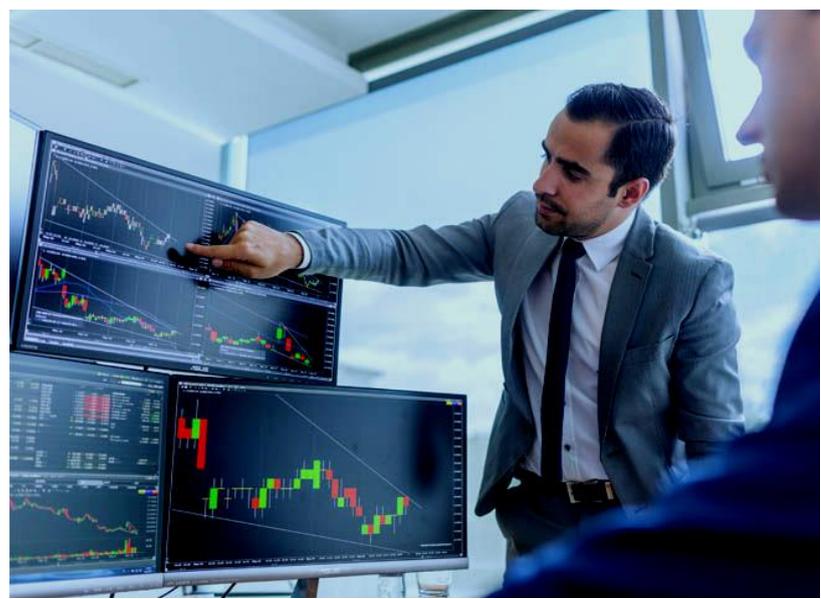

“Making money in the financial markets is easy when you know how the big banks trade.”

Contrary to common perception of professional traders spending their days manually crafting proprietary trading decisions, the reality is quite different. The majority of financial institutions depend on trading programs and advanced software to swiftly and efficiently execute trades.

At Our Investments, we also utilize a highly lucrative trading program developed by industry experts and skilled developers. Leveraging cutting-edge technology and a proven trading strategy, our advanced trading system has been meticulously crafted to ensure profitability. Through intricately coded algorithms, we have engineered a solution to the uncertainties associated with trading, providing calculated forecasts to safeguard against losses and secure consistent profits.

Barclays developed its first automated platform six years ago. Banks such as Citi and NatWest are developing a new breed of automated trading tools that they claim will trade on the fly with little or no human intervention.
